

ABSTRACT

A method of constructing a permuting network. A configuration for layers of a permuting network is selected based on a set of integer factors of N , the number of signals to be permuted, and on pre-selected types of switches. The permuting network is constructed in 5 layers by using the pre-selected types of switches based on the selected configuration.

20328591.doc

20328591.doc